

Awakening from Morning Color

Asahizora

Name: Yosuke Hiraga Graduate School of Agriculture, 1st grade of Master Course

My favorite iris is “Asahizora”.
This flower means morning sky in Japanese.

I want you to see this clear, pale pink color.
This color gives us a sense of peacefulness, as if the morning sun is gently enveloping us as we begin our day.

The Ise type varieties are basically characterized by large drooping outer petals, but the petals are not so drooping because of the large waviness of the petals.

It is the “Asahizora” that blooms to support people without hanging large, defying the characteristics of the species, that is the great one that gives us the strength to do our best.