Tamagawa University Global Education Forum 2011

“The Education Needed in Asia for the 21st Century”

Overview

Tamagawa University Research Institute has conducted research into the theory and practice of the International Baccalaureate (IB) since 2005. The curriculum of the IB is based upon the same philosophy as that of the founder of Tamagawa University who developed the idea of “Zenjin” education. The end result of this education is to train students to be internationally-minded and think for themselves by giving them the skills that will enable them to discover, judge and reach valid solutions.

In the 21st century the cultivation of global elite is urgently needed in Asia including Japan. This year’s forum discusses education in the 21st century from the perspective of the developmental aims of an IB education and the teacher training necessary in order to develop educational practitioners who can nurture global elite.

The Forum welcomes not only education professionals but also all those interested in international education.

How to apply

Admission to this Forum is free. (If you order a lunch box, please bring ¥1,000 to the reception desk on Dec 3rd.)

For application, please fax (to 042-739-8663) or e-mail (to t.instit@adm.tamagawa.ac.jp) the completed application form.

You can get the application form at our university website ( <http://www.tamagawa.jp/> ).
