

It's a YUKATA FLOWER.

Iris ensata var. Mizu no hikari

Whenever I see this flower, I always remember a yukata. It's the yukata that a lady wore to see fireworks together in one summer. That fascinates me with delicate texture and pale purple.

Petal which is like silk is slightly hanging down and style arm stands quietly. I feel kindness and honesty when I see this shape. This flower has WABISABI in all of its appearance.

There is no reason that Japanese do not like this flower.

Yuki Morishige
Graduate School of Agriculture
Tamagawa Univ.

